LOSING CANDIDATES ARE TO BE REAPPOINTED

Governor Frear has announced that in the majority of instances he will reappoint to their former positions those officials who recently resigned in compliance with the law, to enable them to run as candidates for the legislature, and who were defeated at the polls Tuesday. Among the defeated candidates who are to receive back their old jobs are Kalaupokalani, Sr., who resigned from the board of health; J. M. Dowsett, who left the board of agriculture and forestry; Henry Beckley, who quit the board of supervisors on Hawaii; and Carlos Long who resigned from the license commission.

The vacancy left on the license commission by the resignation of C. H. Cooke, who was elected to the legislature, will be filled by a new appointment shortly. Henry Lyman, who was elected to the board of supervisors on Hawaii, will be appointed to serve out the unfinished term of Norman Lyman, who resigned to run for the legislature. The latter was elected, so he will not be reappointed to his old position.

CHONG MUST FACE EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGE

C. Tai Chong, President of the Consolidated Amusement Company, for twelve years an employee of the First American Savings and Trust Company, who is alleged to have left the city with a discrepancy existing in his accounts at the financial institution, is declared as aboard the Pacific Mail liner Siberia now steaming in the direction of Japan and China ports.

Chief of Detectives Arthur McDuffie, armed with the necessary papers to effect the arrest of C. Tai Chong, will sail for the Orient as a passenger in the Pacific Mail steamer China tomorrow evening.

A wireless received yesterday from Captain Adrian Zeeder, master of the Siberia, served to satisfy the local police officials beyond any doubt that the missing head of the amusement company and bank clerk was a passenger in that vessel.

The message received by the police department in response to a lengthy wireless stated that a Chinese answering the description forwarded by the police to that vessel, was aboard. A man who presented a second class ticket numbered 13,685, corresponding to that said at the local agency was discovered among the passengers. His clothing bears marks of W. Tai Chong. He is of the same height, weight and color of the missing man, according to a description which was sent to the Siberia yesterday.

According to the message received from the person who is alleged to answer in all details to the description had in his possession $203.00 in cash. A check to the amount of $250 dated October 15th and in favor of the Consolidated Amusement Company was included among the papers discovered in the effects of the much-wanted man.

Chief of Police Katori, of Yokohama will be cabled today with a description of the former local theatrical impresario, and advised to place the man under arrest upon the arrival of the Siberia at Yokohama. The Japanese police officials have been informed that extradition documents will follow.

Chief McDuffie is leaving this city prepared for any exigency. If Chong proves agreeable to the proposition of accompanying the officer on the return to Honolulu without extradition papers and is willing to waive such documents, the head of the local detective department and his charge should have no delay in leaving Japan on the next steamer following his arrival.

On the other hand, should the former bank clerk demand that extradition papers be produced, cables sent to Secretary of State Knox will forward the essential documents to McDuffie at Yokohama as fast as the mails can carry them to destination. The Honolulu officer may be obliged to remain in Japan for some weeks pending the arrival of the documents.

McDuffie will depart for Japan on the China with warrants for the arrest of Chong upon a charge of embezzlement, the amount stated in the complaint being placed at $1,000.

WOMEN OUTLIVE MEN BY 20 YEARS

PARIS, France, Oct. 15.—The greater longevity of women than of men is shown by recent French insurance statistics, the advantage on the feminine side being almost one-third.

Thus the average age at death of feminine annuitants on one company's books is 70, while for men it is barely 50. Another company has several centenarians, all women, on its books. These annuitants have already received their money back five or six times over. The company is thinking of revising its tariff, making the scale for women much higher.

A distinguished doctor, when asked to account for women's longer lives, said:

"Men live much harder and smoke and drink too much, even though they rarely work too much. Women are wiser and think of the future, rarely smoke, and drink one-tenth as much, while their preoccupations and moral sufferings are much less intense."

"At 40 a woman is in the plenitude of her physical powers, while a man at the same age has probably contracted organic weaknesses which will shorten life."

Treating Skull Fractures.
There is much comment on a recent surgical discovery which reduces the chance of death ensuing from a fracture at the base of the skull. The operation involved is of the simplest description.

Prof. Gregoc of the Tenon hospital has found that by inserting between two lumbar vertebrae a hollow needle, connected with an exhaust tube, and removing a certain quantity of the liquid in the marrow and brain, decomposition is arrested, which brings great relief to the patient.

As soon as the operation is performed the patient regains consciousness, sees and speaks, and, a few hours later, he falls into a coma another lumbar puncture is made, and, if necessary, the operation can be repeated until the patient is cured.

This operation, from which surprising results have already been obtained, proceeds on the salutary principle of letting nature work her own cure, only aiding, where necessary, the work of repair.

The treatment consists simply in giving the patient absolute rest, to stimulate his sleep, to have the ear and nasal canals, and to facilitate cerebral decomposition by one or several lumbar punctures.

AUSTRALIANS SHOWN SIGHTS

"This has been one of the pleasantest days that we have spent since leaving home," said Captain Gregory of the Australian cricket team, as he bade a cordial farewell to new-found friends and stepped aboard the Marama last night. "We were splendidly entertained in England, America and Canada, but I think the best was kept for the last, and that Honolulu has given us about the best time of the entire trip."

Yesterday the Australian cricketers were taken in charge by a committee from the Honolulu Cricket Club as soon as the Canadian-Australian liner docked, and from that moment until the ship sailed they were the guests of the locals. An auto trip to Waikiki and to the Pall, winding up at the Country Club for a banquet, was the afternoon's program, which was carried out to the mutual pleasure of guests and hosts. The officers of the Marama were also present at the dinner.

At the dinner the British residents of Honolulu were naturally much in evidence, and patriotic songs and toasts, to both the United States and Britain, kept up the "hands across the sea" spirit of the occasion.

Mr. D. L. Withington, president of the Honolulu Cricket Club, presided at the dinner with signal success. After the health of the President of the United States and the King had been drunk with rousing applause, there were songs by Harry Blackman, T. P. W. Gray, David Anderson, Canon Ault, and George Davies.

James Wilder had a few words to say and later in the evening sang a Hawaiian song which was a musical invitation to the visitors to come back to Hawaii and live forever. Others who spoke were Thomas Harrington, British consul, and Sir Jas. Mills, chairman of the United Steamship Company, who arrived later in the evening with F. M. Swaney.

The toast to the Australian team, which has just returned from the series of test matches between England, South Africa and Australia, was responded to by its captain, Syd Gregory.

The entertainment committee, largely responsible for the general success of the afternoon and evening, included D. L. Withington, J. R. Maclean, J. H. Piddis, R. A. Jordan, E. Melanphy, Robert Anderson, H. J. Winkley, and L. G. Blackman.

DR. WILEY TELLS HOW HE GOT EDUCATION

HANOVER, Ind., Oct. 26.—"The lesson of my life," said Dr. Harvey W. Wiley in a recent talk to the students of Hanover College, "is that if you really want a thing you can get it. It doesn't matter what the drawbacks are. You don't have to have fashionable clothes and all the comforts of modern life to succeed. I have always endeavored to encourage those who have to pinch in order to get their preparation for life. I would advise you to sacrifice everything but life itself if you really want an education. You will regret it. Those college days of mine, days of hardship and even privation, are now to me days of glory as I look back to them."

"This is the first time that I know of anyone being asked to 'speak' his autobiography," said Dr. Wiley, "and I hesitate somewhat, for to speak of the 'past centuries' will perhaps not be interesting to you."

"My father was a man of accomplishments. He owned a farm at Kent, which he cultivated on week days. On Sunday he was a preacher. In the spring and fall he worked as a plasterer. As you would suppose, my father was not a rich man. He made a little money plastering the neighbors' houses; less attending to their spiritual welfare, and nothing at all on the farm. My prospects for obtaining an education were not very bright."

"I quit that school because my teacher voted the Democratic ticket. Now I am trying to get everyone to be a Democrat."

"I was a pretty green looking specimen when I started to Hanover, with the intention of becoming a student there. My mother dressed me up in a suit of homespun—my Sunday best. I made my way alone across the fields and had already arrived at the classic village when it suddenly dawned on me what a sorry looking specimen of a country boy I was. I almost decided to go back home, but I knew what would happen if I did. So I sat down under a tree and held a debate with myself."

"It was an important question, as to how I should make my way after I had entered college. I finally decided to batch, renting a room for fifty cents a week and cooking my own meals. My meals in the four years consisted chiefly of cornmeal mush, potatoes and sorghum molasses."

senate, and a Republican delegate elected in spite of the big Democratic landslide.

"It was a good clean fight. The people wanted a new deal, it is evident. It seems to me that the Democrats have elected some strong men to office, men of whom their party can be proud. It was a good fight, a hard fight, and the Republican party in the territory has no bitterness in the result. We had worthy opponents and we congratulate them upon their winning fight."

"What is that terrific noise?" asked the pedestrian. "That," replied the policeman, "is caused by an ordinary one-cent safety pin sticking into a three-million-dollar baby."

FENNEL WARRING ON BLIND PIGS

Camp "2" Vineyard street was the scene of riotous revelry on October 29 at least, according to the preponderance of testimony introduced at the hearing of the case of Daniel Hoopli who was arraigned before District court this morning upon a charge of selling liquor without a license.

The arrest of Hoopli was followed by his discharge, Judge Larnach failing to find sufficient evidence to convict.

According to license inspector Fennel much native wine and other liquors are openly sold at the notorious camp. He alleged that Hoopli had disposed of quantities of wine to various residents of the thickly congested district, including Hawaiians, Portuguese and Porto Ricans.

Fennel worked up a case wherein he called witnesses who declared that Hoopli had offered and received pay for wine on several occasions during the past six months.

Fennel alleged that the defendant had not engaged in any occupation for the past six months to his personal knowledge.

While the charge of selling liquor failed to stick, Fennel immediately pressed another charge, that of keeping large quantities of intoxicants on the premises, which case is to be fought out in the lower court tomorrow.

TOMORROW IS DAY TO PLANT

Tomorrow is Arbor Day in Hawaii, and all the public schools throughout the Territory will observe the occasion with special exercises in the morning, some with special programs and nearly all by the planting of trees on the grounds near the school houses.

Arbor Day in Hawaii is always declared by the Governor for some day in the fall, at the beginning of the rainy season. This is directly opposed to the rule in the states, where the natural planting time comes in the spring.

HAWAII OFFERED PICTORIAL TREAT

New films placed on exhibition at the cool and inviting Hawaii theatre last evening were greatly appreciated by a large crowd that thronged the place.

Several feature pictures were received with much pleasure. Manager Noyes announced that he has a number of fine high class pictures on the way down from the mainland, representing the latest releases from the best manufacturers.

has one big job on hand that it is known he would like to finish and that is the Mahukula federal building site case. He has given much energy to the condemnation proceedings and would without doubt be the man to send to Washington to talk before an appropriations committee in case an additional appropriation is needed, as now seems certain.

IS A DECOMPOSED EGG BAD? SUPREME COURT MUST GIVE ANSWER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Is a decomposed egg, within the meaning of the pure food and drugs act of 1906 the same thing as a "rotten egg" under the common law?

Upon the early decision of that question by the Supreme Court of the United States is said to hang one of the most far-reaching disputes in regard to the Federal pure food law since its enactment. Egg men are attacking the Department of Agriculture as seeking to enforce the law according to arbitrary and unreasonable standards, while officials of the department are defending their course as involving the most valuable features of the legislation against improper food.

The controversy arose over the seizure in Jersey City of 443 cans of frozen egg product packed in Topeka, Kas., by the Seymour Packing Company, upon the order of the H. J. Keith Company. The pure food law provided that an article should be deemed adulterated when "decomposed." In the trial that followed the Government called Dr. George W. Stiles, Jr., and a number of other Government chemists, who testified that the correct method of telling whether an egg was decomposed was to count the bacteria in the egg substance.

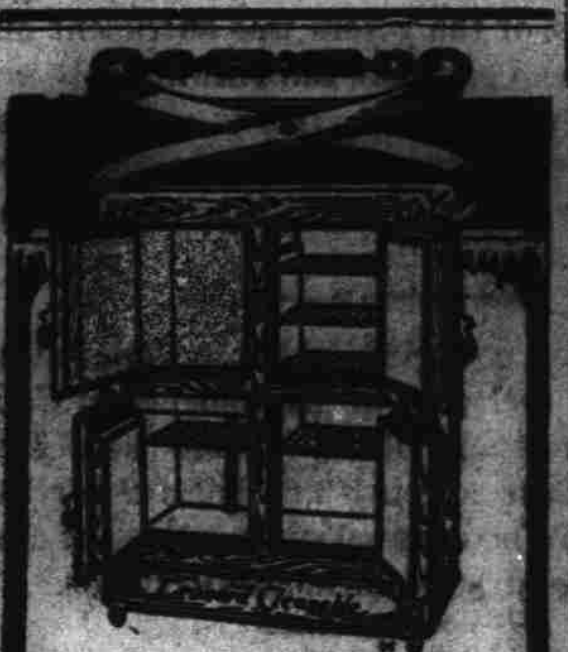

The Keith Company contended that Congress had not defined what is meant by "decomposed," and so the courts, as the Supreme Court did in finding a meaning for "restraint of trade" in the Standard Oil case, must go back to the common law for a definition. Under the law, it continued, the decomposed egg was a rotten egg and so Congress must have meant to have legislated against rotten eggs, or eggs "unwholesomely decomposed."

The egg company attacks the Government as acknowledging that everything in this world is more or less decomposed and that it had to adopt an arbitrary standard of decomposition in order to make the law enforceable. In such an interpretation the Secretary of Agriculture, except for his "leniency," would make all foods, particularly cheese, subject to seizure and destruction under the law, it is claimed.

All the mail except the registered letter pouch in the mail car burned in a Westport, Conn., wreck, was destroyed.

Passenger—But I thought that train stopped here. Porter—It ought to, but there is a little coolness between the driver and the station master, so he never does.

You never thought of tracing that last spell of sickness to your refrigerator, did you? And yet it is quite possible that the blame should be placed right there. Suppose you go right now and examine your refrigerator.

Just open inside of it. Come throw off a gas while digesting the grease which you have wiped into the scratches in the white enamel, into holes made for shelf supports and other cracks and crevices, or left on the uncleanable galvanized iron, and this gas is that horrible smell; but the product of their digestion is ptomaine a deadly poison. Then think of this
